II. Wind Noise Research

Wind noise can be debilitating for hearing device users. Dr. Chung has been systematically studying wind noise patterns in hearing aids with different characteristics (e.g., microphone modes, styles, vent options) in order to derive wind noise reduction strategies. These strategies can be readily adopted in hearing devices to enhance user performances.

